Hello friends!

Welcome to the Strapoli Pizza Blog, a space you can visit on our website where we'll be sharing articles about us, the pizzeria, and even anecdotes from our day-to-day at Strapoli.

This space is announced with great celebration, as we have reached 100 reviews on Google and still maintain a perfect 5-star rating! All of this in just 158 days since our opening.

It's incredible for us because nothing fills us more than the satisfaction of seeing reflected that you really enjoy what we do!

We want to thank the entire Chicago community for their unwavering support. Also, the Italian community that has expressed their love for our food so kindly and has provided feedback that has allowed us to improve everything we offer to you.

In these last 158 days, we have lived incredible moments, many of which you have witnessed. We have met wonderful people who have left an indelible mark on our hearts.

You have also witnessed those moments of stress while waiting for your pizza, but believe me, even though it may take a bit longer sometimes, we are giving our best.

I also want to talk about our incredible team:

Ruben and Marlene, my parents, who are the epitome of experience and are always one step ahead with their wisdom.

Vanessa, who is the symbol of order and good taste, always seeking excellence. Despite not having much experience in the restaurant world, in these 158 days she has learned as if she had a decade of experience.

Then there's Rubens, my brother, who bakes while serving, who welcomes you when you enter, and who is always willing to do whatever it takes for Strapoli without expecting anything in return other than the satisfaction of seeing that Strapoli is more than just a pizzeria.

And lastly, in this team that is so grateful to Chicago, there's me, Marcial, who is nothing more than a guy lucky enough to have this team around to provide the best of the best and fulfill our motto:

STRAPOLI, bringing people together through pizza.

We thank you from the bottom of our hearts and look forward to sharing more anecdotes through this new space.

THANK YOU, CHICAGO!
